Full job description

Your new company

This company is revolutionising the way we exercise. Their convenient hardware allows you to workout anywhere, anytime. Using artificial intelligence, it tailors its weight and reps to maximise your workouts and keep you motivated. With a global presence, you will work in their awesome Perth office where all their eight developers are based. On top of their amazingly flexible work policy, this is genuinely an incredible place and product to work on.

Your new role

As a software developer you will work specifically on the front end of their suite of applications. You'll collaborate closely with coaches to ensure a smooth and convenient user experience. Currently, their front end is built using React.

What you'll need to succeed

- Experience building front end applications and components in a modern JavaScript, preferably React, but applicants with Vue, Angular will also be considered.
- An ability to communicate effectively. With a small and high performing team, it is critical that you can work collaboratively with other members of the development team and with customers.
- Understanding of basic UX / UI design principles.
- Strong API knowledge.
- NextJS and / or Cypress will be highly regarded

What you'll get in return

- A competitive salary commensurate with your experience.
- Contribute to and become part of an exciting and positive culture.
- Highly flexible work arrangements.
- Have your input make a genuine difference.
- An environment that encourages fitness and health, offering free membership to their service.
